

Uber Freight Partners with FLEETCOR to Bring Savings to Its Carriers and Their Drivers

March 21, 2018

Companies Launch Uber Freight Fuel Card, Powered by Comdata

PEACHTREE CORNERS, Ga.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Mar. 21, 2018-- FLEETCOR Technologies, Inc. (NYSE:FLT), a leading global provider of commercial payment solutions, today announced a partnership with Uber Freight, as part of Uber Freight's new Uber Freight Plus program, that provides eligible Uber Freight app users discounts and savings on fuel, maintenance, and tires. The Uber Freight Fuel Card is powered by Comdata, a FLEETCOR company and leader in payment innovation.

"This was a natural fit for us as both companies are aligned to help trucking companies, big and small, run and grow their businesses," said Greg Secord, President of North America Trucking at Comdata. "We are delighted Uber Freight has chosen Comdata as their fuel card partner of choice and look forward to working closely together."

Uber Freight provides a free, easy-to-use app that seamlessly connects trucking companies with loads to haul. Uber Freight selected Comdata to power the Uber Freight Fuel Card because the company is a trusted provider in the industry and possesses a unique ability to provide broad network acceptance and administer discounts for fleets and drivers.

With this prepaid or credit card, active carriers and their drivers can save on fuel, maintenance and tires, as well as leverage Comdata's expertise to provide the compliance services fleets need to meet IFTA and state permit requirements.

"The Comdata-powered Uber Freight Fuel Card, a key component of the Uber Freight Plus program, will help trucking companies of all sizes save big on key operational costs, like fuel and tires," said Bill Driegert, Director of Uber Freight. "We will continue to collaborate with Comdata to match the growing needs of these trucking businesses."
